BOATBOYS' LUAU ENDS IN A DEATH

As a result of too hearty indulgence in the luau provided by the boatboys on New Year's day, "Old Sam," the well known boatboy, is dead "Old Sam" went to sleep on Brewer's wharf on Friday afternoon and at 3 o'clock in the morning a watchman found him dead. The body was removed to the morgue yesterday where a coroner's jury viewed the remains. The inquest will take place on Monday.

Samuel Waldron Kailiahi, generally known as "Old Sam," has been one of "Old Sam" has handled the oars he has the oldest man in that well known organization. During all the years that "Old Sam" handled the oars he has slept at the boat landing, a blanket needs. He was a popular man on the waterfront, and made his share of the revenue accruing from the transporting of people from one part of the harbor to another. During the visit of the many quarters and as usual invested them in a way to insure his inner man being made comfortable. Sam con-New Year's day, and naturally liquor partook liberally of gin, whiskey and beer. In fact he drank well but not wisely, for, after retiring he never again awoke. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon Sam went over to Brewer's wharf and lay down to sleep on some hay, into the stream, His friends thought nothing of his long sleep. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the watchman noticed that Sam had not changed his position and shook him. He discovered then that he was dead, and notified the police.

Sam was formerly employed at the Pacific Hardware company, but after once becoming a boatboy he never changed his occupation. He had no family. In his younger days Sam was a sailor and on one of his trips went to the Arctic during the whaling season. He also made several long voyages with Captain Tripp of the harbormaster's office. --+-

An Admiralty Suit.

William Jackson, a sailor of the barkentine Encore, has filed a libel against that vessel and her master, lows at 1:30 p. m., which is the same | Captain Palmgreen, for $5000 for personal damages received while on voyage from Newcastle, N. S. W., to Honolulu. The claim is based on injury to his left hand, incapacitating him from earning his living as a mariner, caused by a fall to the deck through the parting of a rotten foretopgallant sheet on which he with others was hauling. J. J. Dunne, Assistant District Attorney, is proctor for libel-

INTER-ISLANU AT NEW WHARF SOON

President J. A. Kennedy of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, states that the company expects to transfer all its business from the old wharf at the foot of Fort street to the new wharf on Queen street at the Ewa end of the harbor, during the coming week. The first passenger vessel to be dispatched from the new location will probably be the Mikahala, which sails at 5 p. m. Thursday for Kauai ports. The company has already begun mooring its exclusively freight boats at the new wharf. The new offices have been practically completed and will be in readiness by the middle of the week. These are located at the junction of the Inter-Island and Emmes wharves.

The Mauna Loa will always be berthed at what is known as the Emand a piece of matting sufficing for his mes wharf but which will probably be known in the future as the Mauna Loa wharf for convenience sake. The W. G. Hall and Mikahala will tie up at the end of the Inter-Island wharf where it joins the Mauna Loa wharf American fleet "Old Sam" picked up and the freight boats will be berthed toward the Ewa end.

It is expected that the new wharves will produce considerable saving to tributed largely toward the luau which shippers, as the sugar now brought in was spread on the boat landing on by the Inter-Island boats can be safely stored under the sheds and when rewas one of the largest items. Sam | quired can be transferred to whatever vessels it is to be loaded in.

The old Inter-Island wharf sheds will probably be demolished and it is possible that the jutting corner will be evened off so that sailing vessels can tie up alongside without projecting

PLEASED WITH US

"The trip to the Kilauea volcano is worth while," said Col, James A. Cunningham yesterday. Col. Cunningham and wife returned from a visit to Kilauea on the Kinau, gratified over the result of the journey, especially as they saw Kilauea in a state of activity.

Col. Cunningham returned with a sprained wrist and a wrenched ankle as mementoes of his visit to the crater. While going down toward the pit his foot caught in a projecting piece of lava and he fell heavily, his whole weight coming upon his left hand. The wrist was sprained and blood vessels were broken. Undaunted by his painful experience he followed the guide and shortly afterward fell again wrenching his ankle. Nevertheless he saw the boiling lake and the next day, despite his bruises took a horseback journey of thirtyseven miles.

Col. Cunningham went overland from Kawaihae and has only praise for the country through which he passed. There is as fine agricultural country as one would want to see," said he. "It is rich. The roads are fairly good, too, needing in many places, however, repairs which I understand are soon to be made. By going overland I had an opportunity to view the island of Hawali thoroughly and am well pleased with it."

The visitor is the President of the Bank of Commerce of Salt Lake, President of the Mammoth Mining Company and several other well known Utah mining properties, and he is rated as one of the wealthiest men of the Mormon state. The couple will remain in Honolulu, as guests at the Alexander Young hotel until the departure of the Korea on January 13 for San Fran-

CONSUL SAITO HAS NO WAR BULLETINS

No information has been received as yet by the Japanese consulate concerning the prospects of war with Russia. Consul General Saito yesterday in answer to questions from an Advertiser reporter expressed his unwillingness to talk at all upon the subject.

"I have received no news relative to the situation in Japan," said Mr. Saito. When I do receive information I shall be much pleased to inform you

"Are preparations being made to send any of the Japanese here to Japan?" "No, I have no information as to

The pause was long enough to become eloquent, but Mr. Saito filled out the blank, only with a smile. He begged to be excused from discussing the situation in any way, and mentioned the fact that the last report purporting to come from the consulate relative to war orders to the Nippon Maru, had been promptly denied. This was said to have been given out by an assistant. Mr. Saito stated that the Japanese Minister at Washington was the man from whom to get information. ' "Your paper gets cablegrams all the time. I must get the news from the Advertiser," concluded the consul.

KEPOIKAI RAISES FRESH ARGUMENT

Treasurer Kepoikai will abide by the decision of the Supreme Court, if it should imply authority of the Territory to turn over public property to the county, and make no further contest to preserve the water and light plants, with their revenue, for the benefit of the Territory.

In a final brief filed by Treasurer Keoikai's counsel, Kinney, McClanahan & Cooper, it is contended that the Organic Act, while authorizing the establishment of counties and districts, did not contemplate an elective system of county government such as the one enacted by the Legislature. The question is

"Was it (decentralization) to be carried to the extent of electing large boards in the various islands, or was it merely to be carried to the extent of giving each island a local government through individual officers residing

An elaborate argument for the affirmative of the latter proposition is made.

SAFETY CURTAINS IN GERMAN THEATERS

Robert Mist, who has spent some years in Germany, in cities where the finest theaters in the world are to be found, says that such a condition as existed in the Iroquois theater, Chicago, could not reasonably take place in German capitals.

All theaters there are provided with asbestos curtains, such as that in the Iroquois theater, but the regulations concerning the conduct of playhouses in Europe are so strict that these curtains have to be lowered at least three times during a performance to ascertain whether they are in working or-

Under these circumstances should a fire break out on the stage, the asbestos curtain lowered between it and the auditorium would effectually shut off the possibility of flames reaching the latter section before the audience could be dispersed.

THE HEALTH REDUCTIONS

The reductions proposed, most of them being already ordered, in the Board of Health expenditures for the remaining eighteen months of the biennial period will amount to $140,000. Of this $50,000 is in salaries and payroll and $90,000 in current expenses. At a special meeting of the Board, after the conference with the Governor, the following notice to government physicians was authorized. Governor Carter said yesterday that this action had Honolulu, Hawaii, Dec. 31, 1903.

Dear Sir: The financial condition of the Territory has made it imperative for the administration to demand retrenchment of expenditures in all departments, As provision has been made in the County Act for the appointment of health officers in each county and as the bulk of the income of the Territory goes to the counties, it is only right that this expenditure should be borne by individual counties. A committee was appointed to confer either personally or by letter with the supervisors of each county laying before them the absolute necessity of keeping these positions and we do not doubt but your appointment will follow a careful consideration of the situation. By a unanimous vote of the Board of Health, held on this date, your position of Government Physician was abolished, to take effect December 31st, 1903. The Board of Health sincerely regret to be obliged to take this step, preferring to keep the Government Physicians under Territorial control, but they feel that all will come right under the County Act.

Very truly yours, (Signed) CHAS. B. COOPER, M. D., President of the Board of Health. Drs. Myers and Sinclair have tender-

FISH CASTS ARE ON EXHIBITION

The casts made of Hawaiian fishes by J. W. Thompson, the famous artist, for exhibition at St. Louis, have been placed in the rooms of the Hawaii Promotion Committee. The casts, twenty-six in number, are lifelike reproductions of the highly colored Hawailan fishes. In fact some of the coloring is so vivid, although true to nature, that it is hard to believe that the painting is natural. The casts were made from live fish, and the painting was also done from a living model, often requiring months to secure just the fish wanted. The signature of J. W. Thompson upon each cast attests the genuineness of the coloring, his reputation as a painter of fish life being the guarantee of its truthfulness.

The fish may remain on exhibition at the tourist headquarters if it is finally decided to make no exhibit at St. Louis.

In the absence of a minister, Judge James F. Read, who was born and lived in Kentucky before moving to Western Kansas, was once unexpectedly called upon to say a few words at the burial, near Fort Smith, of a man who was comfortably well off in worldly possessions, but neglectful of his spiritual welfare. "My friends," the judge said, solemly, "we are gathered here to-day to pay a final tribute to our friend who has already solved the mysteries of the great hereafter. He did not have the reputation of a religious man, and yet he lived the life of a noble Kentucky gentleman. He had good hosses, and he ran 'em. He had good seegars, and he smoked 'em.
